

FACT SHEET

The Maggie Fischer Memorial Great South Bay Cross Bay Swim is a 5.5 mile open water swim from the Fire Island Lighthouse to Brightwaters, NY. It was first established in 1927 for Gertrude Ederle, a local woman who was the first woman to swim across the English Channel. It is one of the longest open water swims in the country, a single person event that requires athleticism and navigational skills. In 1999 the event was renamed to honor Maggie Fischer, one of 15 athletes registered to swim that year. Maggie died tragically just before the swim date. Today the event is limited to about 130 participants who come from around the country to be in a friendly but serious competition, considered one of the safest and best run events of its kind.
